

Client #2

Client #2 experienced a lifetime of multiple physical and mental/emotional complaints prior to her sessions on the healing computer. Prior to her first session on the healing computer, Client #2 had a post-surgical pain in her right side. This pain was the result of a trauma she experienced at age 21, and the pain had been consistent until her first session (she is now 53). The pain never left this area which prompted doctors to do further surgeries in an effort to alleviate the pain. The surgeries involved removing her right ovary, appendix, and multiple scar tissue removal surgeries. However, none of the surgeries resulted in alleviating the pain, so she learned to manage the daily pain. During her first session on the healing computer, after just 10 minutes, the pain disappeared and has not returned to date.

Client #2 also suffers from Complex PTSD, a disorder caused by experiencing mental, emotional and/or physical trauma for several years in a row. Client #2 has undergone years of therapeutic counseling for this disorder. After several sessions on the healing computer, Client noticed a huge improvement in her mental and emotional state, and her psychotherapist commented that she wished that she could have made as big a difference in Client's recovery as the healing machine did in such a short amount of time. Client's family has also noticed a marked improvement in the way Client #2 manages PTSD triggers (events, sights, sounds, smells, etc.), and they encourage Client to continue her scheduled sessions.

Client #2 has also suffered from atrial fibrillation (A-fib) for over 10 years, for which she took medication daily. After Client's third session on the healing computer, she underwent a cardiac stress test with normal results. The cardiologist then reduced her daily medication to an as-needed basis. Client continues to feel strong and healthy to date.

People closest to Client #2 have noticed a huge improvement in Client's ability to manage her day to day responsibilities and her ability to respond versus react to stressful situations. Things which previously proved to be too overwhelming in the past and would result in an emotional breakdown are now handled by Client with ease. Photos taken 6 months ago and compared to photos taken recently (within the last month) show an obvious progression in her healing. She has had 18 sessions to date and has stated that she will continue to have sessions on the healing computer.
